Elizabeth Hernandez Appointed Chief Operating Officer of 360Civic

Orange, Calif. —360Civic, an Orange County based company that provides web development and technology services to public sector entities, has announced the appointment of Elizabeth Hernandez to the position of Chief Operating Officer.

Hernandez has spent the last 17 years working with the public and non-profit sectors, through such organizations as the County of Orange Health Care Agency, Mission Hospital, and Olive Crest. She will now head the day-to-day operations of 360Civic, with particular focus on meeting client needs before, during and after each public and nonprofit project engagement.

“I am very pleased to be joining 360Civic’s strong management team,” Hernandez said. “This company has built a stellar reputation in a relatively short time by going above and beyond for its clients. I am delighted to take on this new role with a company so well-positioned for dynamic growth in the future.”

Prior to joining 360Civic, Hernandez served as the Service Chief for Behavioral Health Services Navigation at the County of Orange Health Care Agency, where she supervised three health and wellness programs and supervised a staff of clinicians and health specialists. A graduate of California State University, San Marcos, Hernandez earned a Master’s Degree in Counseling from California State University, Fullerton.

“The appointment of Elizabeth as COO is a natural progression for our rapidly-growing company,” said 360Civic CEO Bridget DiRico. “Her decades of experience in the public sector, working with both municipalities and school districts, provides us with a unique insight into the needs of our clients.”

About 360Civic

School districts, utilities, and municipal, state and federal government departments have requirements different from those in the private sector. However, they share one common aspect – the desire for projects to be completed on time and on budget through a company that is easy to work with before, during and after the job is done. 360Civic approaches every project with these objectives in mind, and our success is exemplified by the short and long-term contracts we have fulfilled with state and federal entities, school districts and superior courts.
